

CITY VIEW

Lishui Garden 丽水园

Road junctions play vital roles in a city's layout. The junction of Liuxian Avenue and Nishui Road in Nanshan district is uniquely designed so that a Suzhou-style garden can be found there. This miniature garden has a pavilion and a bridge by a rock pool filled with carp. It's shaded by a grove of trees and is a fantastic recreational spot, especially if you want to escape the sweltering summer afternoons.

Haide Third Road 海德三道

Haide Third Road is one of the busiest roads in Nanshan district. It runs from west to east, connecting Nanhai Avenue and Keyuan Road. Signs and symbols have been erected for the upcoming Universiade Games. Pedestrians and motorists get a feel of the place when they pass a junction or bridge and know Shenzhen is ready to host the Games.

Shenzhen Flower Trade Market 深圳花卉世界

Shenzhen Flower Trade Market is located adjacent to Central Park, on Huaifu Road in Futian district. It is a distinctive place not only because of its flower industry but also because of its European-style buildings. The street is also called "International-Style Flower Street". At the entrance of the market, a Dutch-style windmill and a mediaeval-style tower are the market's landmarks. There are multiple reasons the market is worth visiting, you can buy a variety of flowers or take a stroll down its aisles and enjoy the lovely scenery.
