

Building No 1 in the village includes a reception center, volunteer lodging as well as a dining hall for athletes. PHOTOS BY XINHUA

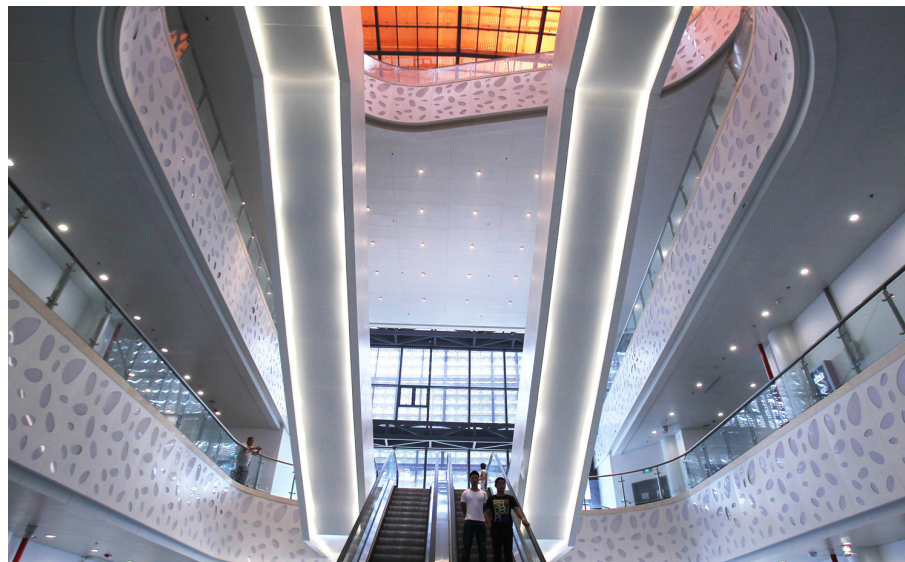

VILLAGE TOUR

China Daily takes you on a jolly jaunt around the places where the young athletes will congregate.

Outside of the sporting arenas, the athletes taking part in this year's Youth Olympic Games need places to relax and unwind after practice or competition and Nanjing has them in spades. From shopping malls to wide-open relaxation areas and communication centers, the city, and in particular the athletes village, has it all. The village area is also environmentally friendly and expected to provide locals with places to explore and enjoy for years to come.

Sculptures enhance the village.

A view from inside Building No 1 in the village.

Green

PICTURE

GUIDE TO WHAT'S INSIDE THE VILLAGE

- 1 Building No 1
includes
 - Welcome Center / Guest Pass Center
 - Volunteer Home
 - CEP Activities
 - Dining Hall
 - YOY Operation Center
- 2 YOY Square
- 3 CEP Activities
- 4 A residential building / Center
- 5 B residential building / Center
- 6 C residential building / Center
- 7 D residential building / Center
- 8 E residential building / Center
- 9 F residential building / Center
- 10 Self-service laundry
- 11 Building No 2
includes
 - NOC Service Center
 - NOC Business Center
 - Event Information Center
 - CEP information & registration desk
 - Multi-faith area
- 12 Building No 3
includes
 - Training area (basketball & taekwondo)
 - Fitness Center
- 13 Outdoor track & field
- 14 Polyclinic
- 15 YOY transport mall
- 16 Square services
- 17 Media sub-center
- 18 Material transfer area
- 19 Digital media center
- 20 Workshop space

Plants are used on the top of buildings to provide insulation.

A multifunctional building in the village.